

```

def analyze_weather():

    file_path = r'C:\Users\Shree\Downloads\sample_weather.txt'

    temperatures = []

    wind_speeds = []

    dew_points = []

    print(f'Attempting to open: {file_path}')

    try:

        with open(file_path, 'r') as file:

            for line in file:

                parts = line.split()

                # Ensure enough columns exist

                if len(parts) >= 13:

                    try:

                        # Extract correct columns based on your data

                        temp = float(parts[3])      # Temperature

                        dew = float(parts[10])      # Dew Point

                        # Handle values like "0.00I"

                        wind = float(parts[12].replace('I', ''))

                        temperatures.append(temp)

                        wind_speeds.append(wind)

                        dew_points.append(dew)

                    except ValueError:

```

```

        print(f"Skipping invalid line: {line.strip()}")

if temperatures:

    avg_temp = sum(temperatures) / len(temperatures)

    avg_wind = sum(wind_speeds) / len(wind_speeds)

    avg_dew = sum(dew_points) / len(dew_points)

    print("\n--- Success! Results ---") print(f"Total Records:    {len(temperatures)}") print(f"Average Temp:      {avg_temp:.2f}") print(f"Average Wind:      {avg_wind:.2f}") print(f"Average Dew Point: {avg_dew:.2f}")

else:

    print("File was found, but no valid data could be extracted.")

except FileNotFoundError:

    print("\n!!! ERROR !!!")

    print(f"Python cannot find the file at: {file_path}")

    print("Check file path and name carefully.")

if __name__ == "__main__":

    analyze_weather()

```

Output: